Population of the State.—The area now comprising Kansas and part of Colorado was organized as the Territory of Kansas in 1854, and in 1861 that portion of the Territory lying within the present boundaries of Kansas was admitted to the Union as the thirty-fourth State. The population of Kansas on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 1,801,028, which represents a decrease of 79,971, or 4.3 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 82,113 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 21.9, as compared with 22.9 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Kansas from 1860, the year in which the area of the present State was first separately enumerated, to 1940, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Kansas consists of all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, the remainder of the population being classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit. For example, Girard qualified as urban in 1920 and 1940 but not in 1930.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF KANSAS: 1860 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Kansas is shown by counties, townships, and cities, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards, and tables 7 and 7-A present data respectively for the Topeka and Wichita metropolitan districts.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 20 cities in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows the population of these cities at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Kansas City, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 121,458, and Topeka, the capital, had a population of 67,833.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 105 counties of Kansas from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. Sixteen of these counties increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and 89 decreased. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1930. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which the counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties in Kansas are the townships and some of the cities. There are 589 cities, of which 148 are independent of township organization and form primary divisions of the counties. The remaining cities, each of which is a part of one or more townships, form secondary subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships and cities for the last three censuses. The population of the cities that constitute secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the primary divisions (townships) in which these cities are respectively located. Where a city is located in two or more townships in the same county, the total population of the city is given in connection with the presentation for the first township. Where the city is situated in two or more counties, the total population is given in connection with each county.

¹ Subsequent to the tabulations, information was received that an area assigned to ward 2 properly belongs in ward 3. The corrected figures are as follows: Ward 2, 8,762; ward 3, 40,163.

NOTE.—Other cities of 5,000 or more (Coffeyville and Hutchinson) have no wards.

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests. The following tables give data for the two metropolitan districts with the main central city in Kansas. Parts of the Kansas City, Kans.-Kansas City, Mo., and the St. Joseph districts are also situated in Kansas; data for these districts are presented in the bulletin for Missouri.

Table 7 shows the population of the Topeka metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940. This district was defined for the first time in 1940. For comparison the 1930 population of the units comprising the present district is also shown, together with the increase between 1930 and 1940. In 1940 the Topeka metropolitan district had 77,749 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the same area had a population of 71,679.

Table 7-A shows the population of the Wichita metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase during the decade. In 1940 the Wichita metropolitan district had 127,308 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district as then constituted had a population of 119,174. That part of Eastborough city which was incorporated from part of Minneha township was included in the metropolitan district in 1940 for the first time. Since Eastborough city was incorporated in 1937, it is not possible to give either its entire population in 1930, or the population of that part which represents an addition to the metropolitan district; since the 1940 population of the entire city was only 312, however, the population added to the district cannot have been very great.

Population of the State.—Kentucky, originally a part of Virginia, was admitted to the Union in 1792 as the fifteenth State with boundaries as at present. Its population on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 2,845,627, which represents an increase of 231,038, or 8.8 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 40,109 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 70.9, as compared with 65.2 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Kentucky from 1790, the year in which its area was first separately enumerated, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table, and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Kentucky consists of all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, the remainder of the population being classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more; for example, Bardstown was classified as urban in 1940 for the first time. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit; for example, Hickman was removed in 1930 from the urban list.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF KENTUCKY: 1790 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Kentucky is shown by counties, magisterial districts, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards, and tables 7 and 8 present, respectively, data for the Louisville metropolitan district and for the census tracts of Louisville and adjacent area.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 13 cities in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Louisville, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 319,077; and Frankfort, the capital of the State, had a population of 11,492.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 120 counties of Kentucky from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. One hundred and five of these counties increased in population between 1930 and 1940, 14 decreased, and 1 (Grant) remained unchanged. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1930. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties in Kentucky are called magisterial districts. The incorporated cities and towns form secondary subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located. There are 86 cities and 237 towns. Ordinarily, each of these secondary divisions forms a part of some magisterial district (or districts).

Table 4 shows the population of each county by magisterial districts, cities, and towns for the last three censuses. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the primary divisions in which the places are respectively located. Where an incorporated place is located in two or more districts in the same county, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first district. Where the place is situated in two or more counties, the total population is given in connection with each county. The population of the cities that comprise several entire districts is shown in roman type, followed by the district population in italics.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1920 TO 1940

[The "districts" shown in the table are magisterial districts. Counties showing totals but no comparative figures for magisterial districts for 1920 or 1930 have been redistricted at some time between the censuses. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1930 and 1940, see footnotes; for those between 1920 and 1930, see Reports of the Fifteenth Census (1930), vol. I, pp. 435-447.]

NOTE.—Other places of 5,000 or more (Fort Thomas, Glasgow, Harlan, Hazard, Hopkinsville, Owensboro, Paducah, Paris, Princeton, and Winchester cities, and Jenkins town) have no wards.

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions having a population of 150 or more per square mile. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests.

Table 7 shows the population of the Louisville metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and some comparative figures for 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade.

Like several others, this district occupies territory in more than one State. In 1940 the Louisville metropolitan district had 434,408 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district had a population of 404,396. The metropolitan district in 1940 had exactly the same area as in 1930, but comparative figures for 1930 cannot be shown for the minor civil divisions of Jefferson County, Ky., which was restricted in 1934.

One of the central cities of the Huntington-Ashland metropolitan district is situated in Kentucky; data for this district are presented in the bulletin for West Virginia. Parts of the Cincinnati and Evansville metropolitan districts are also situated in Kentucky; data for these metropolitan districts are presented in the bulletins for Ohio and Indiana, respectively.

⁴ Jefferson County, Ky., redistricted in 1934; no comparative figures for districts 1, 2, and 3 can be shown.

Census tracts.—Census tracts are small areas into which certain large cities (and sometimes their adjacent areas) are subdivided, for statistical and local administrative purposes, through cooperation with a local committee in each case. The tracts are permanently established, so that comparisons may be made from census to census; they are laid out with a view to approximate uniformity in population and with some regard for uniformity in area; and each is designed to include an area fairly homogeneous in population characteristics. In table 8 the 1940 population of Louisville, and of certain adjacent areas in Jefferson County, is shown by census tracts. Since these tracts were not established until after 1930, there are no comparative figures for earlier censuses. The tracted areas are shown on the accompanying map.

NUMBER OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The greater part of the area now constituting Louisiana was organized in 1804 as the Territory of Orleans. It included at that time the Baton Rouge District—that part of the present State lying east of the Mississippi River—but excluded the southwestern part of the present State—that part lying west of the Louisiana Purchase boundary. In 1812 all the present area of Louisiana except the Baton Rouge District was admitted to the Union as the eighteenth State, and upon the addition of the District a few days later Louisiana assumed its present boundaries. The population of Louisiana on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 2,363,880, which represents an increase of 262,287, or 12.5 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 45,177 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 52.3, as compared with 46.5 in 1930.

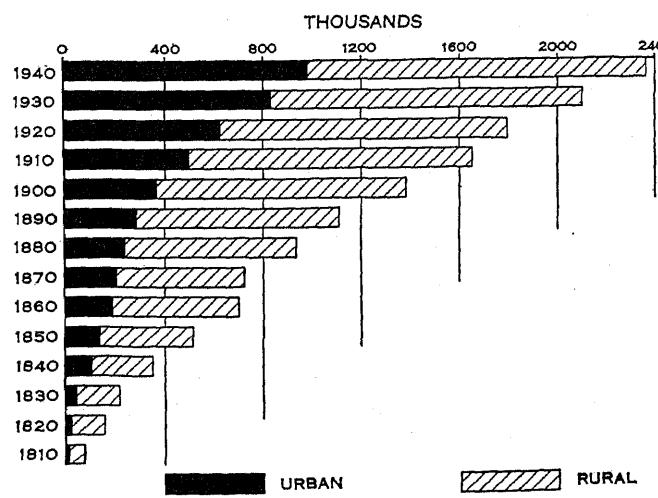

Table 1 shows the population of Louisiana from 1810, the year in which it was first enumerated, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Louisiana consists of those persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, the remainder of the population being classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more; for example, Winnsboro was classified as urban in 1940 for the first time. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit; for example, Amite City was removed from the urban list in 1940.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF LOUISIANA: 1810 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Louisiana is shown by parishes (which correspond to the counties in other States), police jury wards, cities, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of incorporated places by wards, and tables 7 and 7-A present data, respectively, for the New Orleans and Shreveport metropolitan districts; table 8 gives the population for the census tracts of New Orleans.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 10 cities in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows the population of these cities at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. New Orleans, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 494,537; and Baton Rouge, the capital of the State, had a population of 34,719.

Parishes.—Table 3 shows the population of the 64 parishes of Louisiana from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each parish and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. Fifty-seven of these parishes increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and seven decreased. No new parishes have been organized, and there have been no changes in parish boundaries since the census of 1930. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each parish for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which parishes are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the parishes in Louisiana are called police jury wards, except for the city of New Orleans, which is coextensive with Orleans Parish. The incorporated cities, towns, and villages form secondary subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located. There are 23 cities, 105 towns, and 82 villages. Ordinarily, each of these secondary divisions forms a part of some police jury ward (or wards).

Table 4 shows the population of each parish by police jury wards, cities, towns, and villages for the last three censuses. The population of the cities, towns, and villages is shown in italics under the population of the primary divisions in which the places are respectively located. Where an incorporated place is located in two or more wards, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first ward. Where the place is situated in two or more parishes, the total population is given in connection with each parish.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF PARISHES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1920 TO 1940

[The "wards" shown in the table are police jury wards. Parishes showing no comparative figures for 1930 or 1920 have been redistricted. For changes in boundaries between 1930 and 1940, see footnotes; for those between 1920 and 1930, see Reports of the Fifteenth Census (1930), vol. 1, pp. 458 to 465]

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions or incorporated places having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests.

Table 7 shows the population of the New Orleans metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase during the decade. In 1940 the New Orleans metropolitan district had 540,030 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district had a population of 494,877. The metropolitan district in 1940 had exactly the same area as in 1930.

Census tracts.—Census tracts are small areas, into which certain large cities have been subdivided, more or less arbitrarily, for statistical and local administrative purposes, with the cooperation of a local committee in each case. The tracts are permanently established, so that comparisons may be made from census to census; they are laid out with a view to approximate uniformity in population and with some regard for uniformity in area; and each is designed to include an area fairly homogeneous in population characteristics. The 1940 population of New Orleans is shown by census tracts in table 8, and the tracts are shown on the accompanying map. Since the census tracts in New Orleans were not established until after 1930, there are no comparative figures for earlier censuses.

Population of the State.—Maine, originally a part of Massachusetts, was admitted to the Union in 1820 as the twenty-third State. Its population on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 847,226, which represents an increase of 49,803, or 6.2 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 31,040 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 27.3, as compared with 25.7 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Maine from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1940, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart.

The urban population of Maine consists of persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, including six villages about whose corporate status there has been some question. These villages were counted as urban in 1930. Their boundaries are still definitely known, and they are retained in the urban classification for 1940 under a special rule to the effect that no place shall be removed from the urban list solely because of change in corporate status or because of new information in respect to such status.¹ The remainder of the population is classified as rural.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF MAINE: 1790 TO 1940

THOUSANDS

The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit.

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Maine is shown by counties, cities, towns, and other minor civil divisions, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards, and table 7 presents data for the Portland metropolitan district.

¹ Presque Isle, one of these villages, was counted as urban in 1930, and its 1940 population (5,456) has been included in the 1940 urban figures. Recent information reveals that all of Presque Isle town, in which the village is included, was incorporated as a city on Jan. 1, 1940. As this information was received subsequent to the urban tabulations, the population of the village alone (5,456), rather than that of the whole town, has been included in the urban population.

NUMBER OF INHABITANTS

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 10 cities in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows the population of these cities at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Portland, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 73,643; and Augusta, the capital of the State, had a population of 19,360.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 16 counties of Maine from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports.

Twelve of these counties increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and four decreased. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1930. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which the counties are subdivided, the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." In Maine the primary divisions of the counties are towns and cities, except in the more sparsely settled areas where there are divisions known as plantations, townships, grants, gores, tracts, surpluses, one point, and one reservation. Three of these contained no population and hence are not shown in table 4.

In addition, there are several groups of islands not belonging to any town. The urban villages form what might be termed "informal secondary divisions."

Table 4 shows the population of each county by towns, cities, and other minor civil divisions, with figures for the urban villages, for the last three censuses. The population of these unincorporated urban villages is shown in italics under the population of the towns in which the villages are respectively located.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1920 TO 1940

[A blank in the column for any year indicates that no population was returned. Areas in which no population has been reported at any of the last 3 censuses are not shown. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1930 and 1940, see footnotes; for those between 1920 and 1930, see Reports of the Fifteenth Census (1930), vol. I, pp. 474-479]

As the information concerning this incorporation was received subsequent to the urban tabulations, the population of the village alone (5,456), rather than that of the whole town, has been included in the urban population. Township A, range 5, W. E. L. S. (Molunkus) returned in 1930 as Molunkus township.

Incorporated places.—Table 5 shows the population in 1940 and 1930 of the cities and the urban villages in Maine. In this table the cities and villages are arranged in alphabetical order, each followed by the name of the county in which it is located. In table 6, the population of the cities having 5,000 inhabitants or more is shown by wards.

NOTE.—Presque Isle, the only other city of more than 5,000, has no wards.

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts, including the Portland district, a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests.

The Portland metropolitan district is the only one in Maine. This district was defined for the first time in 1940.

Table 7 shows the population of the Portland metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940. For comparison the 1930 population of the units comprising the present district is also shown, together with the increase between 1930 and 1940. In 1940 the metropolitan district had 106,566 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the same area had a population of 99,874.

Population of the State.—Maryland was one of the Thirteen Original States. In 1791 its area was reduced by the formation of the District of Columbia. Its population on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 1,821,244, which represents an increase of 189,718, or 11.6 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 9,887 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 184.2, as compared with 165.0 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Maryland from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Maryland, as defined by the Census Bureau, consists mainly of those persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more. It also includes the population of two election districts (not incorporated as municipalities, nor containing any areas so incorporated) each of which had a total population of 10,000 or more and a population density of 1,000 or more per square mile. The remainder of the population is classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they meet the requirements; for example, districts 12 and 13, in Baltimore County, were classified as urban under the special rule in 1940 for the first time. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they no longer meet the requirements.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF MARYLAND: 1790 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Maryland is shown by counties, election districts, cities, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of incorporated places by wards. Data for the Baltimore metropolitan district are presented in table 7 and for the census tracts of Baltimore in table 8.

Incorporated places of 10,000 or more.—There are seven incorporated places in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows the population of these places at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Baltimore, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 859,100; and Annapolis, the capital of the State, had a population of 13,069.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 23 counties and the independent city of Baltimore, which has the status of a county, from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. Eighteen of these counties increased in population between 1930 and 1940, as did Baltimore, and five counties decreased. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1930. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which the counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties in Maryland are called election districts. The incorporated cities (except Baltimore), towns, and villages form secondary subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located. There are 10 cities (including Baltimore), 132 towns, and 1 village (Piscataway). Ordinarily, each of the secondary divisions forms a part of some election district (or districts).

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1920 TO 1940

[The "districts" shown in the table are election districts. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1930 and 1940, see footnotes; for those between 1920 and 1930, see Reports of the Fifteenth Census (1930), vol. I pp., 488-492]

NOTE.—Other places of more than 5,000 (Frederick and Salisbury cities, and Takoma Park town) have no wards.

Baltimore metropolitan district.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests.

The Baltimore metropolitan district is the only one with a central city in Maryland.

Table 7 shows the population of the Baltimore metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade. In 1940 the metropolitan district had 1,046,692 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district as then constituted had a population of 949,247. That part of district 2, Howard County, outside of Ellicott City (1930 population, 2,342), was included in the metropolitan district in 1940 for the first time.

Part of the Washington, D. C., metropolitan district is situated in Maryland. Data for this metropolitan district are presented in the bulletin for the District of Columbia.

Baltimore census tracts.—Census tracts are small areas, into which certain large cities are subdivided, for statistical and local administrative purposes, through cooperation with a local committee in each case. The tracts are permanently established, so that comparisons may be made from census to census; they are laid out with a view to approximate uniformity in population and with some regard for uniformity in area; and each is designed to include an area fairly homogeneous in population characteristics. In table 8 the 1940 and 1930 population of Baltimore city is shown by census tracts. This tracted area is shown on the accompanying map.

The increase shown is due mainly to the extension of territory included in the metropolitan district.

Population of the State.—Massachusetts was one of the Thirteen Original States. In 1820 Maine, previously a part of Massachusetts, was admitted to the Union as a separate State, and in 1853, with the cession of a small area to New York, Massachusetts assumed its present boundaries. Its population on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 4,316,721, which represents an increase of 67,107, or 1.6 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 7,907 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 545.9, as compared with 537.4 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Massachusetts (excluding the area taken to form the State of Maine) from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart.

The Census Bureau ordinarily defines urban population as that in incorporated places of 2,500 or more. The urban population of Massachusetts, however, consists of those persons living in incorporated cities (the smallest of these having more than 12,000 inhabitants) or in towns (townships) that were classified as urban under a special rule. In Massachusetts conditions are exceptional in that, in many cases, the compactly built portions of the towns are not separately incorporated or politically distinct in any way from the rural territory within the same town. Consequently, if only the cities were counted in the urban population the classification would be quite inadequate. The urban classification has, therefore, been extended to include those towns in which there is a village or densely populated area having more than 2,500 inhabitants and, comprising, either by itself or when combined with other villages within the same town, more than 50 percent of the total population of the town. In 1940, as in 1930, there were 83 such towns. The remainder of the population is classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they meet the requirements. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they no longer meet the requirements.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF MASSACHUSETTS:
1790 TO 1940
THOUSANDS

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Massachusetts is shown by counties, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards. Data for the metropolitan districts are presented in tables 7 to 7-D and for the census tracts of Boston and Cambridge in tables 8 and 8-A, respectively.

Cities.—There are 39 cities in the State, all of which had a population of 12,000 or more in 1940. (Under a State law a town must have a population of 12,000 or more before it can be incorporated as a city.) Table 2 shows the population of these cities at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. The figures shown for the earlier censuses represent, in many cases, the population of the town prior to its incorporation as a city. Boston, the capital and largest city, had a population in 1940 of 770,816.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 14 counties of Massachusetts from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. Of the nine counties whose boundaries have remained unchanged since 1930, six increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and three decreased. Part of Essex County was annexed to Middlesex County in 1933, and parts of Hampshire County were annexed to Franklin and Worcester Counties in 1938. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which the counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties in Massachusetts are the cities and towns. There are no secondary divisions. There are 39 cities and 312 towns. Some of the towns include rather large unincorporated villages, the population of which is not separately shown because they have no officially established boundaries. Table 4 shows the population of each county by cities and towns for the last three censuses.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1920 TO 1940

[For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1930 and 1940, see footnotes; for those between 1920 and 1930, see Reports of the Fifteenth Census (1930), vol. I, pp. 503-508]

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests.

The following tables give data for the five metropolitan districts with central cities in Massachusetts. Part of the Providence district is also situated in Massachusetts; data for this district are presented in the bulletin for Rhode Island.

Table 7 shows the population of the Boston metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade. In 1940 the Boston metropolitan district had 2,350,514 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district as then constituted had a population of 2,307,897. Wenham town, Essex County; North Reading town, Middlesex County; and Hanson town, Plymouth County, were included in the metropolitan district in 1940 for the first time. These new areas had a combined population of 6,676 in 1940 and of 5,248 in 1930.

Table 7-A shows the population of the Fall River-New Bedford metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade. Like several others, this district occupies territory in more than one State. It is now considered, however, as distinct from the Providence district with which it was combined in 1930 and 1920 under the designation, "Providence-Fall River-New Bedford metropolitan district." The larger part of the 1930 metropolitan district of Providence-Fall River-New Bedford now constitutes the Providence metropolitan district, data for which are presented in the bulletin for Rhode Island. In 1940 the Fall River-New Bedford metropolitan district had 272,648 inhabitants, while in 1930 the same area had 273,055.

Census tracts.—Census tracts are small areas into which certain large cities are subdivided for statistical and local administrative purposes, through cooperation with a local committee in each case. Through the use of census tract data, comparisons may be made from census to census. Tracts are laid out with a view to approximate uniformity in population and with some regard for uniformity in area, and each is designed to include an area fairly homogeneous in population characteristics. In table 8 the 1940 and 1930 population of Boston is shown by census tracts. In table 8-A the 1940 population of Cambridge is shown by census tracts; since these tracts were not established until after 1930, there are no comparative figures for earlier censuses. The boundaries of the tracts in these two cities are shown on the accompanying maps.

The population in 1940 and 1930 for the individual tracts is not comparable, because of revision of tract boundaries within the area since 1930.

Population of the State.—Michigan was organized as a Territory in 1805 from the northeastern part of Indiana Territory and comprised the greater part of the area of the present State, including the Lower Peninsula and the eastern end of the Upper Peninsula. In 1816 its area was reduced by the annexation to Indiana Territory, upon its formation as a State, of a narrow strip at the southern limit of Michigan Territory. In 1818, when Illinois was admitted as a State, all of Illinois Territory not included in the State of Illinois was transferred to Michigan Territory. This transferred area comprised almost all of the present State of Wisconsin as well as part of Minnesota. At the same time a section of unorganized territory, formerly part of Indiana Territory, was annexed by the Territory of Michigan. This annexation comprised the middle portion of the Upper Peninsula and a very small part of Wisconsin not formerly included. In 1834 Michigan Territory was further increased by the annexation of that part of Missouri Territory now comprising all of Iowa, the remainder of Minnesota not previously included, and parts of North Dakota and South Dakota. In 1836 Michigan Territory assumed the limits of the present State, with the formation of Wisconsin Territory and the cession of a small area to Ohio. In 1837 Michigan was admitted to the Union as the twenty-sixth State.

The population of Michigan on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 5,256,106, which represents an increase of 413,781, or 8.5 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 57,022 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 92.2, as compared with 84.9 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Michigan from 1810, the year in which the Territory of Michigan was first separately enumerated, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Michigan consists of those persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, the remainder of the population being classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit. For example, St. Louis qualified as urban in 1920 and 1940 but not in 1930.

NUMBER OF INHABITANTS

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF MICHIGAN: 1810 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Michigan is shown by counties, townships, cities, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards. Data for the metropolitan districts are presented in tables 7 to 7-E and data for the census tracts of Detroit and Flint, and of areas adjacent to each city, are given in tables 8 and 8-A, respectively.

Incorporated places of 10,000 or more.—There are 43 incorporated places in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows the population of these incorporated places at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Detroit, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 1,623,452; and Lansing, the capital of the State, had a population of 78,753.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 83 counties of Michigan from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. Seventy-nine of these counties increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and four decreased. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1930. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which the counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties in Michigan are the townships and cities. The incorporated villages form secondary subdivisions of the minor civil divisions (townships) in which they are located. There are 165 cities and 310 villages. Ordinarily, each of the secondary divisions forms a part of some township (or townships).

Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, and villages for the last three censuses. The population of the villages is shown in italics under the population of the primary divisions (townships) in which the places are respectively located. Where a village is located in two or more townships in the same county, the total population of the village is given in connection with the presentation for the first township. Where the village is situated in two or more counties, the total population is given in connection with each county. Where a city is located partly in one county and partly in another, the part in a given county is presented in the regular way as a primary division of that county, and, to make the presentation complete, the population is also shown, in italics, for the part outside that county and for the city as a whole. Italics are also used for the figures representing the population at censuses prior to 1940 of cities that have recently been made primary divisions, to indicate that the figures are not to be added in with the townships and other cities to make the county total (having already been counted once).

NOTE.—Other places of 5,000 or more (Adrian, Alpena, Battle Creek, Berkley, Birmingham, Dearborn, East Detroit, East Lansing, Escanaba, Ferndale, Grosse Pointe, Hamtramck, Highland Park, Ironwood, Lincoln Park, Manistee, Monroe, Mount Clemens, Mount Pleasant, Muskegon, Plymouth, Pontiac, Port Huron, River Rouge, Royal Oak, Sault Ste. Marie, Traverse City, and Wyandotte cities, and Ecorse, Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Park, Inkster, Kingsford, Roseville, St. Clair Shores, and Trenton villages) have no wards.

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions or incorporated places having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests.

Table 7 shows the populations of the Detroit metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade. In 1940 the Detroit metropolitan district had 2,295,867 inhabitants, while in 1930 the district as then constituted had a population of 2,104,764. Harrison township, in Macomb County; that part of West Bloomfield township outside Sylvan Lake village, Farmington city, Farmington township, all in Oakland County; and Taylor township, in Wayne County, were included in the metropolitan district in 1940 for the first time. These new areas had a combined population of 26,490 in 1940 and of 12,817 in 1930.

Census tracts.—Census tracts are small areas into which certain large cities and sometimes their adjacent areas are subdivided for statistical and local administrative purposes, through cooperation with a local committee in each case. The tracts are permanently established, so that comparisons may be made from census to census; they are laid out with a view to approximate uniformity in population and with some regard for uniformity in area; and each is designed to include an area fairly homogeneous in population characteristics. In tables 8 and 8-A the 1940 population of Detroit and Flint, respectively, is shown by census tracts. These tables also give the population in 1940 by tracts of certain adjacent areas, shown on the accompanying maps. Since these tracts were not established until after 1930, there are no comparative figures for earlier censuses.
